WAGE, PRICE LINK DENIED

Schwellenbach Notes Farm, Business Profits and Says Labor Not Wholly To Blame.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach citing high farm prices and soaring business profits, said last night he resents what he called "the widespread effort" to blame increased prices on wage boosts alone.
In another Labor Day statement, Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said that the wages of American workers have doubled since 1939. He said this more than offset a 57 per cent advance in living costs and decreased value of the dollar.
American workers have "a substantially higher actual buying power than they had eight years ago," Bunting said.
More people per family are working, the N.A.M. chief declared, "and this fact should not be ignored when considering whether prices are too high to move all the goods which are being produced."

Gives Cost Estimate

Labor costs come to 75 or 85 per cent of all expenses upon which consumer prices must be based, he said.
Schwellenbach said in a radio speech that an effort is being made "to shift responsibility" for high prices "entirely to the organized workers of America."
He blamed "the same individuals" who in June, 1946, "promised that with the lifting of

7,000 At Dog Trials Opening

10,000 Expected at National Field Event Near Mt. Victory.

Special to The Star
MT. VICTORY, Sept. 1—The twentieth running of the Leafy Oak National Coondog Field Trials opened yesterday through the fields and woods on the spacious Walton farm three miles east of here.
An estimated 7,000 persons attended the first day trials, and saw a little over half of the 44 scheduled heats run off under overcast skies and over a damp line. The first heat of 10 coon dogs opened shortly after 7 a. m. with succeeding heats run until dark.
Thousands of automobiles parked along the roads adjacent to the farm and in the fields at the scene of the trials contained coon dog owners from a score of states, many with several entries.
Thundershowers Saturday night did little to dampen the ardor of the field trial followers, many of whom pitched tents in the fields, or slept in their cars when rooms in the neighboring communities were taken upon arrival.

439 Dogs Entered

A record number of entries marked the running of the national classic, with 439 dogs scheduled to run the line yesterday and today in an attempt to wrest the national honors from the 1946 Leafy Oak Tree Champion, the Black and Tan Bozo, owned by Champion owned by C. E. Bryan of St. Albans, W. Va. Bozo was Clarence Moland of Leland, Ill., and from Creeping Della the Line on hand to try for repeat honors, being scheduled to run in the 22nd heat late yesterday.
Attendance today is expected to approach the 10,000 mark as the

UN GROUP RECOMMENDS PARTITION OF PALESTINE

American Legion Calls Communism "Greatest Menace Facing U. S."

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 1—The American Legion today unloosed a sharp blast against communism at home and abroad and at the same time recommended that the nation adopt a universal military training program and decline to reveal its atomic energy secrets to anyone.
Winding up its 29th national convention, the Legion voted a resolution terming "the aggressive spirit of communism the greatest menace facing America today." Another resolution adopted recommended outlawing of the Communist party as a political group in the United States.
A spirited debate on veterans' housing brought the first roll call vote of the final session and resulted in a 2,796-to-722 defeat for proponents of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill, who had presented a minority report endorsing the measure.
The housing committee's majority report, quickly adopted after defeat of the minority proposals, called for ejection of all non-veterans from public housing projects with apartments to be turned over to former servicemen.

Vet Priority Urged

Priority for veterans in all future public housing projects also was urged.
The foreign relations committee report, which not only denounced communism but also gave full support to the Truman administration's program for aid to Europe, was adopted with no dissenting "noes" heard after a minority report had been rejected on a voice vote.
The report specifically approved the Marshall plan, backed "our active policy in the Balkans," and strongly approved the Truman doctrine of aid to Greece and Turkey.
It also urged the cutting off of potential war supplies and goods from "any nation threatening the peace of the world."
The report, prepared after consultation by the Legion committee with assistant Secretary of State Robert Lovett in Washington, provoked a brief floor skirmish.

Presents Report

U. S. Sen. George Malone (R-Nev.) presented a minority report but the majority findings were adopted unanimously after they had been supported in a loudly-applauded address by former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, an avowed Republican presidential candidate.
"There are two plans for Europe," he asserted. "One is the Marshall plan. The other is the Communist plan. If you oppose the Marshall plan for European recovery, then you will give comfort and aid to the Communist plan.
"Unless America shows it is not miserly and follows through in saying to Europe, 'you help yourselves,' Communism will prevail."
Malone said yesterday he was against rubber-stamping the state department" in the preparation of the majority findings. The minority report which he presented declared that "the first consideration is to properly safeguard the credit and economic integrity of the United States.

Minority Group Complains

The minority group complained of what it termed the siphoning of American funds to European and Asiatic countries "on the theory that money alone will stop communism," but it advocated advancing of funds to foreign nations for some purposes.
The adopted majority report declared "we cannot ignore the fact that the Communists are actively hindering European rehabilitation for the very purpose of creating chaos.
If the European nations which the Marshall plan seeks to rehabilitate should collapse, "the red tide would pour through to the Atlantic," the committee said.
"This is not alarmist, but re-

O'NEIL ELECTED LEGION LEADER

Manchester, N. H. Police Chief Named New National Commander.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 1—James F. O'Neil, 40, former newspaperman now police chief of Manchester, N. H., today was elected commander of the American Legion.
O'Neil, who saw service in both World Wars, succeeds Paul H. Griffith of Uniontown, Pa.
The rules were suspended during balloting at the close of the Legion's 29th national convention to permit the election of O'Neil.

Other Candidates Quit

The action came after all opposition candidates had asked that the delegates backing them switch to O'Neil.
The three other nominees were S. Perry Brown of Beaumont, Tex.; Joseph J. Malloy, Washington, D. C., and Martin V. Coffey, Middletown, O.
In an acceptance speech, O'Neil pledged his efforts to secure passage of a universal military training law and to fight against communism "and other isms."

Calls for Alertness

"We must recognize," he said, "that there are also other subversive elements in this great country who would take advantage of the situation to undermine the nation. We must ever be alert. We must improve our democracy so it can stand and will stand against them."
O'Neil, who during pre-election campaigning had been termed by opponent supporters the choice of "kingmakers" in the Legion ranks, was placed in nomination by Maurice F. Devine, a Manchester, N. H., attorney, and a past national executive committeeman of the Legion.

Marion's Frank Smith Pitches 7 No-Hit Innings

As the Marion Cubs batted last night in their half of the seventh inning, Frank Smith, on the hill for the locals, had a no-hit game in his pocket.
With his teammates leading 6-0, Smith had struckout nine Lima batsmen without allowing a hit or walk, in setting the Terriers down for seven straight innings.

90 KILLED IN FIRE

ADMISSION OF 150,000 JEWS ALSO ASKED

Committee Suggests Arab, Jewish States and Free City of Jerusalem.

By The Associated Press
LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 1—The United Nations Palestine committee majority recommended last night the partition of the Holy Land, formation of an economic union there, and admission of 150,000 Jews to Palestine during a two-year transitional period beginning today.
Abdul Rahman Azzan Pasha, secretary-general of the seven-state Arab league and one of the chief Arabic spokesmen, immediately assailed the report as "absolutely impracticable."
"I do not think the assembly will take it," he said in a statement. "It does not solve anything. It only makes the situation worse."
The five Arab states in the UN —Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia, are certain to fight the whole committee report in the assembly, which will convene Sept. 16. The Arabs demand an independent Arab Palestine, no more Jewish immigration, and termination now of the British mandate over the Holy Land.

No Immediate Statement

There was no statement here from the Jewish Agency for Palestine, which has demanded a Jewish state in the Holy Land and increased Jewish immigration.
The committee majority proposed that the immigrants be permitted into Palestine while the Holy Land is being transformed into the economic union made up of one Arab state, one Jewish state, and the autonomous city of Jerusalem.
A committee minority proposed a joint Arab-Jewish state under a federal government.
The committee majority—made up of Canada, Czechoslovakia, Guatemala, The Netherlands, Peru, Sweden, and Uruguay—proposed that Britain continue her administration of Palestine during the two-year transition period, with the possible assistance of other members of the United Nations.
A minority recommendation supported by India, Iran and Yugoslavia proposed establishment of a joint Arab-Jewish state under a federal government.

Would Permit Immigration

The federal scheme would permit Jewish immigration up to the country's absorptive capacities and by implication it would limit it to the achievement of parity between Arabs and Jews.
Australia, the 11th member of the committee, took part in drawing up both the partition and the federation plans, but in the completed report expressed support for neither.
The majority also suggested

1946 Air Classic Mark Broken in Minor Race

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, Sept. 1—Steve Beville of Hammond, Ind., and his "Galloping Ghost" yesterday won the 105-mile Kendall trophy race for P-51 Mustangs, a new event with $2,500 first prize money, at 384.6 miles an hour, bettering by 11 miles an hour the winning time in last year's Thompson trophy event, the 300-mile closed-course speed classic of the National Air Races.
The 1947 Thompson event will be run today, with Beville competing.
A short while before, Mrs. Ruth Carter Johnson, a former WASP from Upland, Calif., won $2,500 first prize and the Halle trophy for women fliers at a record speed of 223.3 miles an hour for the five-lap, 75-mile dash for AT-6 Texan trainer planes.
Second in the Kindall, at 377.9 miles an hour, was Kendall Everson of Cleveland, who won $1,000. Woddy Edmonson of Lynchburg, Va., at 372.3, was third, winning $750.

Pilot Injured

Fourth place, at 367 miles an hour, went to M. W. Fairbrother of Minneapolis, who received $500. William C. E. Murray of San Diego, Calif., took last place money of $250 with a figure of 357, substituting for pilot William Eddy of La Jolla, Calif., who was in nearby Berea hospital with carbon monoxide poisoning acquired during yesterday's Bendix trophy dash. Only five of the nine starters finished.
Grace Harris of Kansas City, Mo., with an average of 215 miles an hour, took second place money of $1,000 in the Halle event, and Mrs. Edna Gardner Whyte of Fort Worth, Tex., whose average was 210.7, collected third prize of $750.
Mrs. Jane Page Hlavacek of Wilmette, Ill., who won a $1,000 special prize Saturday for being the first and only woman to finish the 2,050 mile Bendix trophy race from Van Nuys, Calif., was fourth in the Halle event at 209.3 and won $500. The fifth and final prize of $250 went to Anna Logan of Cleveland, whose average was 186.8.
Dori Marland, movie actress and model from Pacific Palisades, Calif., dropped out on the fourth lap after leading the first round and pressing Mrs. Johnson closely in the second and third. She made a forced landing on a road near the airport, but was unhurt.

Betters Ohioan's Record

Mrs. Johnson's winning speed was about 23 miles an hour faster than the rate at which the late Marge Hurlburt of Painesville, O., took the Halle race last year. Mrs. Johnson also equalled this year's top qualifying speed and exceeded

17-TON NEW MODEL JET-PROPULSION FIREBOAT BUILT BY PROSPECT FIRM FOR AUSTRALIAN NAVY

By W. T. BUCHANAN
Marion Star City Editor
A 17-ton all-steel fireboat, built along the banks of the torpid Scioto river, soon will be ready for shipment to faraway Australia.
The centridrive board, a jet-propulsion development of the Hanley Engineering Service of Prospect, is being built for the Royal Australian navy and will be used in the port of Freemantle on the extreme west coast of the "down" under continent.
It will be used to patrol the two and a half mile harbor and to fight ship and dock fires. It will "go to sea" if required.
One of a long line of jet-propelled fireboats built by the Hanley Service over a period of nearly 10 years, it is the largest yet to come from Marion county's only shipyard.
It is believed to be the heaviest boat ever to ply the upper reaches of the Scioto river and only its unique means of propulsion permits its use on the stream. The 17-ton welded steel hull with full equipment draws only 30 inches of water and the propulsion jets extend only four inches below the bottom.
The propeller and rudder of a conventional craft would extend at least another 30 inches below the bottom of the boat, making it impossible to use it in shallow water near shore.
Due in Prospect this week are representatives of the Royal Australian navy and the Royal British navy from the British embassy in Washington.
Keenan Hanley, head of the Hanley Engineering Service, said three tests will be made before final acceptance of the craft. Naval representatives have been in Prospect once to pass on construction of the hull. The test this week will be on operation and maneuverability of the boat in water and efficiency of the fire-fighting equipment. The next test, before final acceptance, will be of the completed boat.
When ready for shipment the boat will be pulled from the river on a ramp, loaded on a 21-ton semi-trailer and hauled to the nearby C. and O. railroad siding, where it will be loaded for shipment west.
The boat is 30 feet, 6 inches in length with a beam, or width of 10 and one-half feet. The hull was designed by a well-known marine architect in Chicago.
In fighting fires it will throw up to 4,000 gallons of water a minute through 12 two and one-half inch nozzles. Due to improved turbine pumps, it is considerably more efficient than the 103 fireboats built by Hanley for the Coast Guard in the early years of the war.
The 4,000 gallons is a "mere" matter of 17 tons, equal to the boat's weighth, going skyward in a great spray each minute.
Four 100-horsepower Chrysler marine engines power the craft for propulsion and for pumping water for the fire-fighting equipment. Equipment also includes an independent gasoline-powered electric generating plant for lights which include powerful searchlights. Each of the main engines is six-cylindered. The craft carries a gasoline fuel supply of 260 gallons, enough for 10 hours' operation.

Operation Simplified

Jet propulsion of boats, for which Hanley holds a number of patents, provides flexibility of operation not possible with conventional screw-driven craft, the maker declares. Operation is simplified, many complicated parts are eliminated, and most important, the craft can be taken into water far too shallow for conventional craft.
The Hanley boat is driven by two powerful streams of water pumped through movable jets located at the rear of the bottom of the hull.
The propulsion equipment includes four turbine-type pumps driven by the 100-horsepower engines. Two of the pumps draw water through the bottom and

IMPROVED OUTPUT OF STEEL EXPECTED

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 1—Steel mill operations, "adversely affected in recent weeks by the hot weather and shortages of raw materials," may show some improvement with cooler weather and the end of the vacation season, said the magazine Steel today.

Steel supply "appears as tight as at any time since the end of the war in practically all of the major lines," said the trade journal, reiterating its prediction that 1948 will be "well on its way" before "anything approaching balance will be experienced" in major items, because of "the most persistent demand ever experienced in peacetime."

In efforts to increase the ingot rate "a major roadblock is the continued scarcity of raw materials, notably scrap, pig iron and coke," the magazine continued, though better conditions are anticipated in scrap and coke. "The outlook for pig iron, however, is less encouraging, with some blast furnaces expected to be taken out of production for repairs."

The national steelmaking rate was unchanged last week at 93 per cent of rated capacity, equivalent to production of about 1,628,000 tons.

Although "substantial tonnages of steel are moving in the 'gray' market and the source of such steel is as much a mystery as ever," steel found that conditions in this market are "slightly improved over the recent past."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Trench Mouth

VINCENT'S infection, a condition in which there are pain and the formation of ulcers in the mouth, occurred so frequently among soldiers overseas during the first World War, that it was given a popular name, by which it is still known, trench mouth.

This fact also indicates that the condition may be passed readily from one person to another, sometimes to such an extent that an epidemic occurs. When severe, it may affect the gums and throat as well as the lining membranes of the mouth. In such cases, it is not only uncomfortable and inconvenient but often interferes with ordinary daily activities.

It has been found that penicillin is quite valuable in the treatment both of acute Vincent's infection, and the more prolonged variety of the disorder. The penicillin has been used in a number of different ways, such as by applying it locally with a swab to the affected tissue and giving it by injection into a muscle.

The local application of the penicillin has a number of disadvantages. For example, the penicillin may be carried away by the mouth secretions, and it is not in contact with the germs producing the condition over an extended period of time. The penicillin does not get in contact with all of the germs in the pockets around the teeth.

The giving of the penicillin by injection into a muscle overcomes these disadvantages. The action of the penicillin continues as long as it is present in sufficient quantity in the blood stream.

In carrying out the treatment by injection, the penicillin may be given every two hours for five doses. Twenty-four hours later, this is followed by a thorough scaling and polishing of the teeth by the dentist and correction of any disorders of the teeth which might interfere with healing. No other treatment usually need be employed. The patients treated in this manner are permitted to carry on their normal daily routine.

After their third or fourth injection of the pencillin, patients report definite lessening of the sensitiveness of the gums as well as a change in the appearance of the tissues, which become less red and swollen. On the following day there is almost complete absence of the sensitiveness of the gums. The scaling and cleaning of the teeth are carried out without any particular discomfort.

Thus, it would seem that a course of treatment of only ten hours with penicillin, together with proper care of the teeth and gums, will bring about rapid healing in cases of trench mouth.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. N.: What could cause puffiness under one eye?

Answer: Puffiness under one eye might come from lack of rest and sleep. If the person is getting sufficient rest and is taking the proper exercise each day, and the puffiness still persists, it may be puffiness still persists it may be because there is some disturbance in the water balance in the body. Some individuals have tissues which hold more water than others and it is this collection of fluid in the body which causes puffiness under the eye. There is no need to worry about this matter, for the condition can cause no trouble.

Tomato Vine Hits 10 Feet, 7 Inches

A plant that rivals the legendary plant in Jack and the Beanstalk winds its way skyward up the side of the garage at the rear of 200 Barnhart street.

Grover Mitton, of that address, reports that the colossal domestic plant creation is a tomato vine 10 feet and seven inches tall Twenty-two tomatoes, most of them the size of an average man's two fists, serve to make the plant a gourmand's attraction Mr Mitton reports that one tomato weighed one pound and six ounces

Mr Mitton whose hobby is tomato growing, first discovered the climbing tomato plants four years ago, when partially out of skepticism he ordered seed from a company, which advertised that their plants would grow to a height of 18 feet. The first he grew was 11½ feet tall and he is shooting for the 12 foot mark this season.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

EXPRESSION OF GRATITUDE

Editor of The Star—Recently our community has passed through a trying experience. A precious little rosebud with blue eyes and blond curls wandered away from her little brother with whom she was playing out into a cruel world full of hot sun, crashing rain, briars and biting insects where there were no kind parents to kiss away her baby woes or provide her with needed comforts.

For more than 80 hours she was a little lost baby in spite of the fact that kind friends were doing all that was humanly possible to find her and return her to her anguished parents. In our community during those 80 hours there was many an anxious heart and many a tired body to which soothing sleep refused to come It was during these anxious hours that prayers began to ascend to the throne of God It was then a Divine hand of Love began to intercede. Again He took strange ways, "His wonders to perform".

A neighbor went for his cows and did not find them waiting at the gate as usual. God Himself guided this good man's steps for He had planned that he should find little Carolyn Who can doubt what we read last Sunday at Sunday school in Proverbs chapter 23 and verse 11 Indeed the Redeemer of the helpless is mighty Our lesson was on mercy Now let us be honest with God and admit that He not only He could give endurance which enabled her to withstand this ordeal. As we lift grateful hearts in thanksgiving that our neighbor was given the privilege of playing this part in God's plan, let us also renew our faith by this proof that God is in His Heaven and resolve to work harder and pray more that all may become right in the world that during the two-year transition period the land transfer restrictions in the area of the future Jewish state be suspended It called for the economies of the two states to be closely integrated, with a customs union, a common currency and joint control of public utilities throughout the country.

The majority also favored a joint economic board which would control nearly all aspects of Palestinian economy as well as the ports of Haifa and Jaffa, both contained within the proposed Jewish state.

Geographically, both states would have three divisions, with two points of intersection, permitting uninterrupted contact between all parts of the two states

Details of Division

The Jews would be allotted eastern Galilee, the central coastal plain including Haifa, Jaffa and Tel Aviv, and the Beersheba subdistrict, including most of the Negeb.

The Arabs would receive western Galilee, the hill country of Samaria and Judea, excluding Jerusalem, and a coastal strip in the south from Isdud to the Egyptian frontier.

The autonomous area of Jerusalem would become a United Nations trusteeship, under a governor appointed by the UN who would be neither Jew nor Arab.

This is the second proposal for the UN to take over direction of an autonomous city. The UN has taken Trieste under its wing at the request of the four-power foreign ministers council but after more than eight months the UN has not appointed a governor for Trieste. The Big Five powers are deadlocked on that point.

Under the committee plan both the Arab and Jewish states would give guarantees for the protection of racial and religious minorities and maintenance of the human rights provision of the UN charter

The warden, a retired colonel of Marines, says these churchmen are helping him and the state do a better job of reforming all the inmates who are capable of reformation.

The men Col Kieren speaks of are members of the Committee on Institutions of the Louisville Council of Churches

DOCTOR PLEDGES ALL IN WAR ON CANCER

By The United Press

PHILADELPHIA — A Philadelphia skin specialist, Dr. Albert Strickler, is planning to devote the rest of his life and income to cancer research.

He has purchased with his own funds a building chartered as the Strickler Memorial hospital and which will house the Hersch-Razel-Strickler Foundation for research on the cure of cancer.

He needs another $100,000 properly to equip the medical unit, and he figures he'll have the amount in four years.

"Every cent received in fees not required for the maintenance of the clinic, will be used for equipping the new hospital," he explains He estimates his practice is worth $25,000 a year.

Dr. Strickler is not sure what leads he will follow in his research He admits there have been times when he thought he had hit upon something revolutionary, only to find it would aid one patient and not another.

The quiet little man with the big idea now conducts a cancer clinic twice a week at his office He has directed the Skin and Cancer hospital here for 18 years and formerly was associated with two local medical schools as professor of skin diseases

He plans to devote one floor of his hospital to treatment of cases beyond the aid of surgery. Another section of the center will house the new chemical laboratory. He expects to spend a lot of time in that laboratory, and so now he's busily engaged in a refresher course in organic chemistry.

In a pasture just east of the city, is a fine example, a so-called water-panther, cut two feet deep in the earth and preserved by roots of wild grass The likeness is about 250 feet long and 12 feet wide. Archaeologists say it originally was four feet deep and the outline was preserved by keeping water in it

Houseful of Children Reared by 2 Spinsters

By The United Press

McKEESPORT, Pa.—Two sprightly old sisters who never married are "getting along fine" with a houseful of orphaned children.

Gertrude and Barbara Beardmore have made a full-time job of mothering orphaned babies for the past three years. The entire second floor of their big home is converted into a nursery.

"Most babies are brought to us when they are a few days old," Gertrude said "We keep them for 10 months or so, study their habits and make them strong and healthy"

As a hobby, the sisters photograph the babies at various ages. Before each child leaves they have a studio portrait taken for remembrance

"We wouldn't like to see them go when they are adopted," Gertrude said

Gertrude is a registered nurse and mother Sister Barbara's 18 years of nursing experience has proved invaluable

"We get along fine," Barbara said "At night, after the babies are tucked in, we wash the diapers and other clothing, then we have all day to spend with the children"

"Fish Are Chumps To Fall For Tasty Shrimp Lure"

By The United Press

NEW ORLEANS — Fisherman Frank Manning has evidence that fish can smell and taste, as well as see Otherwise, he asks, why would they be chumps enough to fall for his "tasty shrimp lure""

The lure looks like a shrimp, tastes like a shrimp and even changes color like one But it is made of plastic and is full of hooks

What the fish don't know is that the plastic shrimp has a head that screws off The fisherman fills the cavity with fresh shrimp, screws the head back on and tosses the line into the water. Tiny holes in the body of the lure allow enough shrimp to leak out to fool the gullible fish

Labor Celebrates Its Day

AMID congratulatory messages for American labor on the national holiday in its honor, a few reservations must be included this year.

There has grown up, partly through thoughtlessness, partly through design, a mistaken notion that labor in the United States is a synonym for unions. Labor in the United States is people who work. Some of them, a minority, belong to unions. Some of the unions are preoccupied with such matters as class warfare, the overthrow of capitalism and political organization. It thus becomes necessary to distinguish between labor as a whole and union labor. Within the ranks of union labor, furthermore, it is necessary to distinguish between associations of free American workers organized for collective action and associations of workers used by agitators and revolutionists for purposes that have no bearing on the condition of American wage earners.

The history of the union labor movement in this country offers many examples of attempts to exploit wage earners for the prosecution of class warfare in Old World style; to exploit them in politics for crackpot movements of all descriptions; for revolution; and for exertion of minority pressure for other purposes unrelated to the welfare of working people. Eventually, all these exploitations ran their course and were rejected by Americans whose instinct warned them that ax-grinding for bitter-enders, bellyachers, revolutionists and zealots was beneath the dignity of free Americans.

The country's congratulations to American labor on its day are being made in 1947 with the reservation that they are not to be appropriated by anyone opposed to the principle that in the New World the Old World's hatreds, misconceptions, libels and discredited theories about social organization have no proper place.

Austerity Unlimited

IN THESE trying days for Great Britain, there is one fading asset whose value can't be gauged in figures. That is hope. The British supply of hope must be lower than its gold reserve, now that rationing is as severe as in the war's darkest days.

The tendency is to disparage Britain's postwar output, but it is 10 to 20 per cent higher than in 1938. Steel production is at an all-time high; shipbuilding is more than double its prewar rate. Contrary to an impression built up by frequent use of such words as "bankrupt," the idea is prevalent that Britain's industrial machine is creaking to a stop. That isn't the case; rather, the war years have placed such demands on it that it hasn't been able to meet them.

Whether they can increase, or even maintain, their present production pace is something not even the British know. The most recent rationing orders may have brought them to the bottom of their reservoir of hope.

Unhappy War Brides

NOT a week goes by without a disenchanted war bride from Europe slugging her husband, deserting her baby or running off with the butcher boy. Detroit police have arrested one on a highway robbery charge. In Pennsylvania a French girl left her husband because he had to go to work every day "just like peasant."

It is inevitable that many wartime romances would go on the rocks. The parties to hundreds of these marriages were homesick soldiers and opportunist girls who saw a chance for plenty of food and a free trip to America.

Military and church authorities frowned on such alliances but locksmiths aren't the only ones love laughs at. Now many an unhappy couple finds the harsh, cold dawn of reality too much. Many a European girl discovers that in America people work for a living. They're in the minority but they're the ones who make the news columns.

The Decline of Handwriting

IN ENGLAND, as elsewhere, chirographers are becoming rare. The Archbishop of Canterbury is having difficulty finding a penman skilled enough to inscribe Princess Elizabeth's marriage license with the traditional flourishes and curlicues.

Time was when the art of penmanship was stressed in the schools and every clerical staff had at least one skilled penman for preparing certificates and special documents. Nowadays the only Spencerian script is produced by typewriters with the kind of type. Writers taught to move their entire forearm have given way to those who produce chicken-track scrawls with little movement above the second joint of the index finger.

In bygone days writers used to produce handsome manuscripts with goose quills and homemade ink. Now we don't have penmen but we have pens that write under water, are guaranteed not for years, not for life, but forever, need refills less often than does a camel and have tips made of the rarest metal. A legible handsome script is so rare as to be a curiosity. Draw your own conclusions.

Two Labor Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Difference Between Our's and Europe's.

IN EUROPE, Labor Day is celebrated on May 1; in the United States, it is on the first Monday of September. There is a vast difference in the conception of the role of labor in all this. It is as different as Europe is from the United States.

May first is the universal day of revolution. It marks rioting and bloodshed and terror. It is for Europeans a day of protest against feudalistic oppression. It is a day of destruction. Originally a holiday of festivity to announce the advent of the warmer weather of flowers and fertility, it was taken over by the Second Socialist International in 1889 as their particular moment to assert the triumph of socialism over capitalism.

The Communists always regarded it as their special day—as a celebration of the world revolution. In Soviet Russia it is a national holiday like our Fourth of July. It means to them the ultimate triumph of Marxism, of the class struggle, of hatred of man for man. They hold vast, militaristic parades to show their might. Down with the successful! Up with the proletariat!

Even in the United States, the Communists celebrate May day with parades and mass meetings and speeches. In recent years, they have marched veterans, in uniform, including officers of the United States armed forces, together different from that. It is in this country a national legal holiday, authorized by congress, and celebrated by the entire population, employer and employe, management and labor, rich and poor, adult and child. It is the end of the summer holiday. It is the return to work. It is the glorification of the American conception of work. It is the last long holiday at the end of a hot summer. After that day, the summer camps are closed; the public schools are opened. It is a day of merriment and happiness.

Inaugurated by the Knights of Labor in 1882, it was legalized by congress in 1894. When the American Federation of Labor was at its peak of public influence and receptivity, Samuel Gompers always utilized the day for a grand speech on the services of labor to America and it was always a patriotic speech, for Samuel Compers was an American to the bone, loving this country, its very soil and its grand institutions. He could look neither to the right nor to the left, for his vista was always straight ahead to the constant improvement in the life of the American worker under our free institutions, in a land where voluntary association rather than force and coercion gave every man his opportunity. In fact, his own philosophy of industrial relations had as its keystone the word, voluntarism, a philosophy, curiously enough, that has been incorporated in the Taft-Hartley bill that the current labor leaders describe as a "slave" measure.

No Use for Communist

I write this almost as Sam might have spoken it—it is a nostalgic recollection of an authentic great man. He would have no truck with Communists and other haters of our country and he never associated himself in any way with May 1 celebrations. He abhorred the Marxist idea of the class struggle, looking forward rather to the rise of the working man through equality of opportunity within the capitalist system.

So there is a contrast. May 1 is the day of revolution; our Labor Day is one of partnership, of joint enterprise, of common association among all our people. Some day, management and labor, Henry Ford and Walter Reuther, will march together in a Labor Day parade to show the misguided Americans that whereas we are free to differ on methods, we are united, firmly united, as a people in defense of American institutions.

Management and labor do not fear each other in this country nor do they believe that they must destroy each other. That negative concept is strictly European. Here the difference of opinion is on the division of the earned dollar; it is not over the revolutionary concept of which class shall dominate; who shall be the rulers, who the helots.

She Gets Tired of Walking Too Quickly

A lady has filed suit against a Chicago automobile distributor, demanding delivery of a car on which she made a down payment in 1937.

Women are so impatient.

Imagine expecting to get a new automobile a mere 10 years after ordering it. Doesn't she know there's a war over?

Suppose she'd gotten it right away, a couple of years or so after she ordered it. Look at all the time she'd have spent during the war years, standing in line at the gas rationing board.

Besides, a '39 or '40 model would undoubtedly have been a wreck by now, hardly worth over two or three thousand dollars on the used car market.

Yes sir, man's ingratitude is surpassed only by woman's unappreciativeness. They ought to take that lady's name right off their list. . . . provided, that is, they can find it.

Democrats Start Early

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—A political development having considerable weight—not merely in the literal sense of tonnage—is the quantity of publicity material being put out at this time by the Democratic national committee. It is, one newsman estimates, perhaps five times the amount currently put out by the Republican committee.

The publicity output of the Democratic national committee embraces speeches by the executive director, Gael Sullivan, a diligent patron of the public ear, together with other material originating in the committee or made use of by it, including copies of statements of Democratic leaders.

Significance arises not merely from the extraordinary activity of the committee and the volume of its output but from the time. It takes place a year and two months in advance of the presidential election. Ordinarily the national committees of both parties do not become thus active until after the presidential nominations are made and the campaign actually under way. But on this occasion, as respects the Democratic committee, the campaign is already on.

There is a possible explanation. The Democratic national committee knows already who the party's presidential nominee will be. Top personnel of the committee are close to President Truman and have a special stake in seeing him reelected next year. This not only may account for the earliness of the committee's activity but determines the nature of it. Their publicity is aimed to defend Mr. Truman and his record and build him up, together of course with attack on the Republicans. The present activity of the Democratic national committee is a preview of the presidential campaign next year, so far as the committee can make it so.

Warm Talk Forecast

The campaign next year, if speeches of Executive Director Sullivan are an augury of it, promises to be vehement, though possibly more provocative than illuminating. In a radio broadcast during August, Mr. Sullivan devised "10 commandments" which he charged the Republicans were following. Examples:

"Thou shalt not give the laboring man the same rights as other citizens.

"Thou shalt not have the right to education."

These "commandments" are likely to be read by the public in the light of familiar details of common knowledge. So far as the laboring man is embraced in labor unions, not only does organized labor have "the same rights as other citizens," it has more. It has for example, legal immunity from the anti-trust and other laws against combinations in restraint of trade. As for "the right to an education," the laws of every state not only confer that right but make it a responsibility, a parent who does not send his children to school is punishable by law. But perhaps partisan political utterances should not be held to an exacting standard of precision in words.

Looking to next year's election, there is real importance in certain inclusive issues which are set up in present outgivings of the Democratic national committee. One line of attack upon the Republicans is expressed in a quotation from a radio broadcast by Democratic House Leader Sam Rayburn: "The Republican congress failed in two things, it failed to put through its own legislative program . . . As put by Executive Director Sullivan, "the 80th congress did not complete its own narrow and selfish legislative program."

Conflicting Words

Here is a strange picture. One party, the Republicans, was in control of congress and had a legislative program. In the nature of things the other party, the Democrats, was in opposition—Executive Director Sullivan denounces the Republican program as "narrow and selfish." Yet the Republicans are attacked on the ground that they did not do what the Democrats say they ought not to have done. The charge that the Republicans failed to carry out their legislative program or parts of it, is one that Republicans are often called upon to defend themselves against. A discriminating public is likely to see some illogic in this, possibly some may call it "phony."

One issue raised by the Democratic committee is genuine and important. It will be an actual issue in the presidential campaign next year, not because the Democratic committee says it is one and wants it to be one, but because in fact it is an issue. It is the cleavage between President Truman and congress.

As put in speeches by Executive-Director Sullivan, using the word "veto" in a sense chosen by himself: "The Republicans in congress vetoed the President's program." "Again President Truman's program . . . was sabotaged by the Republican-dominated 80th congress." That statement is accurate enough and would be absolutely accurate if the word "Republican" were omitted. The issue was not between Mr. Truman and the Republicans, it was between him and congress as congress.

Two-Party Turndown

Mr. Truman did put forward a legislative program, perhaps the most comprehensive ever sent to any congress by any president. It contained some 20 proposals. But the congress to which Mr. Truman sent that program was the one preceding the present, the Democratic congress that was in session when Mr. Truman became President. That Democratic congress turned a cold shoulder to Mr. Truman's program, and he took the extraordinary step of appealing to the public, vainly as it turned out, to put pressure on leaders of his own party.

Mr. Truman's legislative program was disapproved by both Democrats and Republicans. Both his program, and his vetoes in the present congress, will naturally be an issue in a campaign for reelection.

From News of Other Years

Ten Years Ago

It was Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1937.

Jacob Schroll, 17, of 171 St. Clair street, was killed in an automobile accident east of Mt. Gilead on the Mt. Vernon road. A companion, Allen Dale Thompson, 18, of 149 Sharpless court, was seriously injured. BoBth were enrollees at the civilian conservation corps camp near Mt. Vernon and were driving toward Mt. Gilead, presumably on their way to Marion.

A steer shown by 17-year-old Helen Strine of near Waldo at the Ohio state fair was judged grand champion in the open class. Miss Strine, who raised Aberdeen Angus stock, had previously won high honors in the previous three Cleveland livestock shows.

The law firm of Guthery, Strelitz and Guthery announced dissolution of partnership. Fred E. Guthery, who had practiced law in Marion since 1891, announced formation of partnership with his son, Howard F. Guthery, who had been a member of the firm since 1925. J. Malcolm Strelitz, a member of the firm since 1914, and Harry L. Dowler, associated with the firm for two years, formed a partnership under the name of Strelitz and Dowler.

The Ohio Associated Telephone company's new semi-annual directory was issued, listing an increase of 250 phones over the previous directory.

Twenty Years Ago

It was Thursday, Sept. 1, 1927.

Rev. Richard Loew and family of Strausburg were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Keller of North Main street and other friends here. Rev. Loew was a former pastor of Salem Evangelical church.

Mrs. Gertrude Kling of the Cowan apartments and son Donald of Cleveland, Mrs. George B. Scofield of Bellefontaine avenue and George Wright and daughter Nancy of South Vine street returned from a three weeks' motor trip to Montreal, Canada, the Green Mountains and other points in the east.

Mrs. Jane E. Kennedy, 80, mother of O. E. Kennedy, president of the Marion County bank, died at her home on West Church street.

Tax settlement figures at the auditor's office showed that total tax distribution in Marion county for the fiscal year 1926 amounted to $2,084,197.

Alfred Horn of St. James street left for a 10 days' visit in New York City.

Miss Janet Trott was hostess at a bridge party in her home on Forest street.

Miss Louise Neal and Miss Ruth-eda Dannenberg gave a bridge and shower at the Neal home on East Church street complimenting Miss Mildred Burnside, who was to be the bride of C. Warren Klinefelter soon.

THE CEMENT MIXER

The Labor Department's Flaws

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 — Mr. Mr. Truman's official associates have planned to celebrate labor day today with picnic speeches around the outlying precincts, taking the Republicans apart for having wrecked the labor department. Particularly in the department itself, the clambake orators have primed themselves with accusations that the Republicans broke their own party platform pledges to make the department really amount to something, as an agency to handle all labor matters. Instead the Republican congress cut the ex-Perkins center down to bureau-size, or you might say, to a place for Secretary Schwellenbach to handle the women's bureau and gather up a few statistics, but not much else.

The President unsheathed these accusations first when he gleefully let a reporter pin him down in a press conference to make the charge that the Republicans had "torn up" labor's own department here.

Oversupply of Bureaus

In a way, Mr. Truman is right. During the war, government had as many as 44 distinct and separate labor bureaus. The Republicans seized on this, and in their 1944 platform called for one department to handle all labor matters. Their actions since then appear to have violated this. They took away the conciliation service and gave it an independent director. Then when Mr. Truman tried to transfer the U. S. employment service (which certainly sounds like a labor problem) back into the labor department, the congress defeated his reorganization plan, and left the bureau in the federal security agency. Furthermore, the White House tried to get back into the labor department the administration of its wage-hour law which has an independent status, and has been really administered independently by William R. McComb. Mr. McComb has shown both independence of the labor department and also management, as an impartial administrator. His transfer back in under Schwellenbach failed in congressional defeat of the Truman reorganization.

Half Untold

All this being true, it does not tell half the whole story. The Republicans did these things deliberately, and the question is whether they acted in the public interest. Schwellenbach, for instance, has as assistant secretaries a CIO man and an EFL man. McComb's bureau would go to one or the other. There are 60,000,000 jobs involving wages and hours nowadays, but CIO-AFL membership amounts to perhaps 15,000,000. In the interests of the other 45,000,000 workers of the country, the maintenance of independence for the wage-hour administration might be far more important than keeping a relatively minor campaign promise.

It was FDR who first took the U. S. employment service out of the labor department and gave it to federal security. Mr. Truman tried to send it back with an executive order, under his war powers, but the powers expired and congress defeated reorganization. Congress had a good reason for this also. The federal-state unemployment compensation is still in social security. Most state compensation plans are set up so a man cannot get compensation if he can find a suitable job. State laws make these two bureaus intertwined practically in one, so congress left them both in federal security.

Recision of the conciliation service was likewise deliberate and not without reason. Congress figured the labor department regards itself as the spokesman and special friend of organized labor, and congress wanted a conciliation service which would be truly what it was meant to be—an impartial go-between affiliated with neither employes nor management. A conciliation service in a union controlled bureau would not serve simple public purposes.

How unionistically partisan the labor department is showed itself again only recently. One of Schwellenbach's aides (John Gibson) delivered a speech to the Kansas City CIO convention denouncing the Taft-Hartley bill, and saying it might—might destroy collective bargaining. He also denounced congress for slashing the labor department budget and cutting its functions.

What has happened to the labor department therefore, seems attributable mostly to its lack of independence and impartiality. A department which professes to be the agency of labor in government is hardly the place to manage bureaus which are supposed to act impartially in the public interest.

Accent on Airpower

Marshal Tedder Tells How and Why Britain Plans Force of Unprecedented Size and Strength.

By LEE VAN ATTA

Britain's reasons for pouring millions of dollars into a revolutionary jet airforce at a time of economic crisis within the country are explained herewith by air Marshal Lord Tedder. Lee Van Atta, veteran International News Service war and foreign correspondent, obtained this exclusive interview during his current round-the-world tour.

LONDON, Sept. 1—The accent is on airpower in Britain. England's present program calls for a tremendously strengthened and modernized combat air force with a hitherto-unequalled punching power and for the immediate development of a fast new fleet of commercial aircraft.

Some commercial models, already under construction in British air factories, are both larger and faster than their American competitors.

But the all-out-for-airpower program goes far deeper than commercial significance.

As Marshal of the Royal Air Force Lord Tedder said today:

Air Marshal Tedder

"Our object is to have in being an air force so powerful that it will act as a definite deterrent to any future aggressor with war-making plans."

To press development of that war-deterrent, the British government has given unprecedented recognition to England's air arm and is backing it up with unwavering peacetime financial support.

Some features of the program:

1. Tedder holds the chairmanship of the British chiefs of staff committee, top defense-policy makers.

2. The royal air force has virtually been given cabinet recognition by its inclusion as an essential element and decisive unit in the ministry of supply on all aircraft matters.

3. The RAF has been given the lion's share of all research and development funds and has the second largest military appropriation, being bettered only by the army, which has sweeping overseas occupation commitments.

4. The royal air force's peacetime complement has been set at over 300,000 personnel, second largest in the world. (On a population basis, the U. S. would have to maintain an air arm of one million officers and men to equal the RAF allocation.)

5. British aircraft production chiefs have been advised that all future development must be interlocked with royal air requirements.

THE tactical-strategical side of the RAF is backed by a top-level scientific planning board and by some of England's leading production experts.

Tedder said frankly:

Peace without power is a dream. We want the RAF to be the most effective potential policemen, to prevent wars, that there is in Europe.

"I trust that it will not be too long before the world learns that war does not pay. I'm very much afraid, however, that the point has not yet been fully driven home."

Lord Tedder's inference is obvious. The backing he has already received from the British war cabinet, government and parliament clearly indicates that they are in complete concurrence with his views.

The quiet, capable airman who served as deputy supreme commander of the allied invasion of Europe to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, continued:

"Human nature and human affairs are still the root reasons of war. We in England have a healthy respect for the atomic bomb and all that it represents. We are changing our techniques to fit the requirements of the atomic age. But we are not losing sight of the reasons for war and we are watching them as carefully as we are trying to plan for the future.

Tedder does not believe it is yet practical to regard the era of "pushbutton warfare" as arrived. But, he said, the royal air force is fully ready to meet the era when technical development is able to keep abrest of tactical employment.

Lord Tedder declared:

"There is no reason to place emphasis on past techniques of warfare nor is there reason to lose sight of the fundamental things of warfare.

"Our objective today is to build an airforce based on critical analysis and constructive thinking of the past as applied to a constructive and forceful organization for the maintenance of peace in the future."

Dear Nephew: Home never looked so good as it has since we came back from our camping trip. I turn a little handle and water, hot and cold, comes out. I punch a little thing and lights turn on. I marvel at the inside plumbing and wonder why it took men thousands of years to think it up. Then I wonder why, so many years afterward, men still go camping to get away from the comforts of home. I suppose it is because they imagine they are having a good time. Truly, anything is possible if you have enough imagination.

For example, I am what the radio industry is looking for. I am what they call a disk jockey. I was born that way. All my life I have been full of the silliest remarks you ever heard. Your aunt sometimes has said to me I talk to hear the sound of my voice because I gabble automatically and she swears she has listened to me for minutes at a time when I wasn't saying anything at all, just gabbling like a duck.

I do not know anything about phonograph records, but I plan to turn that into an asset. I wowed a bunch of people one time in a place where they had an old wind-up phonograph and a pile of records two feet high by picking records at random, reading the titles and making comments on what the music sounded like. I am the kind of a fellow who always wows people. They do not always think I'm funny, but I do, and that's the main thing about being a disk jockey.

He is the ultimate in radio pestiferousness. They won't be able to go any lower than this, although I said the same thing about singing commercials. It is clear to me I would be sensational as a disk jockey. The stuff I'd think up would be cornier than anything anyone else can think up; at least it always has been. Please see what you can do about getting me on a national hookup. I'll be willing to start for $1,000 a week, taxes paid and all my Taft-Hartley liabilities cancelled. We miss your boy more than we can bear to think about, but he had to go home sometime I suppose—and there'll always be one more summer, I hope. Give him and the rest of the family our regards.

Sudden Rise in Heat Called Scale Tipper In Roosevelt's Death

By International News Service

CHICAGO—A sudden 40-degree rise in the Warm Springs, Ga. temperature played a major role in the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

And what's more, according to Dr. William F. Petersen, director of clinical research at Chicago's St. Luke's hospital, the death of at least one other U. S. President was involved with sharply-changing weather conditions.

Dr. Petersen hunted down the weather record at Hyde Park, N. Y., where the president reportedly suffered a stroke March 25, 1945, and found that during that week the thermometer had shot up to the 80's, dropped to the freezing point, and then skyrocketed again.

At Warm Springs, Dr. Petersen reported in an article in Post-graduate Medicine, the temperature climbed from near-freezing to a point in the 70's in the five days before Roosevelt's death April 12.

"Thrombosis followed by rupture and hemorrhage probably was the immediate cause," Dr. Petersen wrote.

Impairment of the heart and circulatory system is affected by wide and rapid temperature changes Dr. Petersen believes, because the major blood vessels must do a tremendous job of sudden expansion or contraction to maintain a normal heat balance.

That's what caused the death of Calvin Coolidge, Dr. Petersen said.

Coolidge died of a heart condition on Jan. 5, 1933. He apparently was, in good health.

Dr. Petersen found that the temperature dropped 60 degrees in a single day at the time of Coolidge's death. Immediately before the ex-president's collapse, the mercury rose suddenly.

Dr. Petersen explained that a cold air mass contracts the blood vessels, causing the blood pressure to rise and reducing the oxygen supply to many parts of the body.

To compensate, the body produces a chemical called histamine which dilates the blood vessels and reduces the blood pressure. A warm air mass will dilate the blood vessels in much the same manner.

As a result of the sudden drop and rise in temperature at the time of Coolidg's death, Petersen said:

"We then would have (1) the biological after-effect of correction or even over-correction of the preceding cold wave and (2) the normal effect of the warm wave.

"This could result in sudden clotting in those regions and in the coronary."

Suspected Hold-Up Man Slain by Police at Dayton

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., Sept. 1—A police sergeant shot and killed a man he identified as a fleeing bandit after a chase of several blocks from a Dayton park late Saturday.

The dead man was identified by Police Sergeant R. C. Grundish as John Charles McMillon, about 30, of Dayton.

Grundish said he pursued McMillon after answering screams of Miss Hazel Graff, of Dayton, who with Charles Little of Lexington, Ky., had been held up at knife point.

Little identified a wrist watch and a wallet containing $22, found on the dead man, as those taken from him in the robbery, Grundish said.

Infant Found Dead in Crib at Home

Jackie Wayne Keller, three-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Keller of 10 Copeland avenue died Sunday. The child was found dead in its crib at 8:30 a. m. by the parents. Dr. Frederick T. Merchant, acting in the absence of Dr. E. H. Morgan, coroner, said the child apparently had been dead about two hours. Lymphitis was given as the cause of death.

He was born June 7 in Marion, the only child of William and Stella Evans Keller. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Monroe church, Oak Hill, O. Rev. Peter McCain will officiate with burial in Monroe cemetery.

AIR RACES

her own qualifying average by eight miles an hour.

Three of the eight planes were unable to retract their landing gear fully. Betty Clark of Denver, Colo., pulled out on the second lap, when one wheel refused to raise at all and the other pulled up only slightly.

Margrete McGrath of San Francisco, who led the qualifiers with an average of 223.3 miles an hour, also had landing gear trouble and never got into better than sixth place.

Anna Logan of Cleveland, whose wheels failed to retract fully, was slowed up badly and ran in last place.

William Brennand, 22-year-old test pilot from Oshkosh, Wis., wrapped "Buster," a midget plane with big ideas about speed, around the closely set Goodyear pylons yesterday to become the first semi-final heat winner in the closed course events at the national air races.

Brennand, flying a hand built job entered by his boss, Steve Wittman, of Oshkosh, averaged 163.5 miles an hour in winning the opening heat of the $25,000 Goodyear trophy event and 161.5 m.p.m. in the semi-final. He looked good to take the $7,000 first prize in the finals today.

Mantz Captures Fancy

Still the talk of the crowd was the blazing performance of Paul Mantz, famous Hollywood flier, who averaged 460 miles an hour Saturday for his second straight victory in the 2,050 mile Bendix race from Van Nuys, Calif., to Cleveland.

Mantz, a collector of planes as well as a flier, bettered his 1946 mark by 25 miles an hour. Even so, his time for the flight was just one minute 10 seconds better than Joe De Bona of Beverly Hills, Calif. Both flew North American P-51 Mustangs.

Paul Penrose of North Hollywood, Calif., flying "Swee' Pea," the entry of Art Chester of Los Angeles, took second place in the Goodyear semi-final heats with 159.5 miles an hour.

Herman Salmon, a Milwaukeean who moved to Van Nuys, Calif., was third with 155.1 mph.

The formal opening of the show, marking the 20th year of the national, came two hours after the start of racing. Giving a new filip to the usual playing of the Star Spangled Banner, a parachutist floated to the field, with an American flag fluttering well below him. A breeze of between 10 and 15 miles an hour helped make it a perfect picture.

The crowd gasped as the Navy's "Blue Angels," an acrobatic team using four planes for the first time, did slow rolls in complete formation, probably the only flight exhibition group in the world trained to perform that feat.

Labor Day Weather Picture Clears Up

By The Associated Press

The Labor day weekend, which started out to be a blisterer in the midwest Saturday, showed definite signs of improvement Sunday and the outlook for the holiday itself was very pleasant except for some southern areas.

Temperatures Sunday were comfortable throughout the Great Lakes region, and the northern and central plains states, and forecasters said more of the same was in prospect for Monday.

Readings ranged from around 50 in upper Michigan to the upper 60s in the lower Great Lakes region Sunday, and from 55 in North Dakota to 65 in Nebraska.

It was still uncomfortably warm, however, southward from Kansas, southern Missouri and the area just north of the Ohio river, and forecasters said little change in temperature was expected in the hot region through Monday.

"History Indicates New War Is Likely," Gen. Beightler Says

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 1—Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler told the 29th annual reunion of the 37th Division veterans' association yesterday "history indicates we shall have another war."

Urging the veterans to stand on the alert, the wartime commander of the 37th Division said, "with two diametrically opposed ideologies existing in the world, war must be considered a definite possibility."

Beightler spoke at ceremonies dedicating state route 3 as a memorial to the war dead of the 37th Division. He characterized the highway as "a constant reminder of our departed comrades."

"You cannot blueprint the future," Beightler said. "Until we see more evidence of permanent peace we must be prepared. Twice we had allies who were able to give us time to perpare but the next time we may not have the advantage."

Nothing Musicians Can Do Surprises Rentor of Pianos

By The United Press

NEW YORK—William R. Steinway, a vice president of Steinway, the piano firm, has dealt with artists for years. He was therefore not at all surprised when one of his pianos came back with a white rabbit inside.

The piano had been used in a concert in Philadelphia. A tuner adopted the rabbit and it has since flourished. Another time a concert grand used by Gene Krupa came back with a peculiar rattle in the bass. A tuner removed 14 drum sticks from the instrument's interior.

Steinway, grandson of the original Henry Steinway, has a half million dollars' worth of pianos set aside for concerts. They are loaned to artists without charge except for delivery and tuning. The company provided pianos for 20,000 concerts last year.

Steinway recalled that artists have various ways of preparing their hands for a concert. Paderewski played for seven or eight hours. Josef Hofmann uses hot water. Sergei Rachmaninoff thought there was nothing so effective as an electric pad. An unnamed artist used hot milk. This once prompted Moritz Mozkowski, composer and wit, to approach him and ask: "Was the milk perhaps a little sour today?"

The pianos are perfectly tuned before they are sent out. Steinway explained, however, that the tone may be affected by conditions in the concert hall. The audience is an important factor.

"Fill Carnegie Hall with an audience of fat bellies and the artist is whipped from the start," Steinway said. "They soak up all the tone."

15 Freight Cars Derail In Accident at Holgate

By The Associated Press

DEFIANCE, O., Sept. 1—Workmen yesterday cleared the wreckage of 15 derailed freight cars from the double tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near Holgate, O., 15 miles east of here. One man was injured in the accident.

The pileup occurred at 5:55 p. m. Saturday when an arch bar broke on the first of the 15 cars which made up the center section of a 60-car east bound freight train.

Trainmen said that a train rider they identified as Richard White of Marion, Ind., was injured when he was trapped in a cargo of pipe from a gondola car that upset into a ditch. They said the man was extricated two hours after the wreck.

The wreckage blocked both main tracks and also a switch line, forcing all traffic to be detoured onto other railroads until midnight Saturday when the switch line was cleared.

DRIVER POSTS BOND

D. D. Qualls, 34, of Pryor, Okla., posted $25 bond for appearance in municipal court at 10 a. m. Tuesday on charges of speeding. He was arrested on Delaware avenue at 12:50 p. m. Sunday after being clocked by police at 50 mph.

Povenmire, school superintendent Mrs Dorothy Decker has been employed as half-time kindergarten teacher for an afternoon kindergarten which is being established at the North elementary school as a temporary measure.

Safety Patrol Ready At Galion Schools

Special to The Star

GALION, Sept. 1—Before the school bells ring in Galion, Tuesday morning, members of the School Safety Patrol will be at their posts on the street corners of the school zones of the city to safeguard the lives of their schoolmates.

Experienced patrol members will be stationed in the school districts until a new group are sworn in for the school year About 200 youngsters normally serve on the patrol in Galion

Organized 16 years ago by Grace Thomas, secretary of the Galion Automobile Club, the patrol has a record of no accidents in any school zone where the patrol has been on duty. The automobile club each year furnished badges, belts, raincoats and hats to the boys and girls who watch their schoolmates safely across the intersections in the school zones The Galion club also sponsors School Safety Patrols in Edison and Mt. Gilead, besides both city and parochial schools of Galion

Hundreds of safety posters are being placed in strategic points throughout the city by the Galion Automobile club Mrs Thomas in announcing the placement of the posters, added a warning that traffic accidents involving school age children had shown an increase during vacation months.

She said American motorists have shown tendency to relax their vigilance at the wheel with the result that the good safety records which have been established are beginning to show a narrower margin over our blacker years, and added that the excellent work of School Safety Patrols and classroom safety instruction cannot be entirely successful in protecting the children of our community unless the motorist gives wholehearted cooperation

CHIEF OF ECUADOR FIGHTS ARMY REVOLT

By The Associated Press

QUITO, Ecuador, Sept 1—Army and constabulary officers rebelled in two cities of Ecuador Saturday against the week-old regime of Col Carlos Mancheno, and Sunday he sped troops and lend-lease tanks to quell the challenge to his virtual dictatorial powers.

The army turned against Mancheno in Riobamba, city of 24,000 in the state of Chimborazo approximately 100 miles south of Quito and in Guaranda, 20 miles west of Riobamba in adjoining Bolivar state.

The cabinet, after a lengthy emergency session, issued a communique describing the revolt in Riobamba as "a small, seditious outbreak whose brain-trusters (Mentalizadores) are leaders of the Conservative party," and asserting the government was in complete control "in the rest of the republic"

Mancheno, who ousted President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra in a bloodless "single shot" revolution last Sunday, was apparently caught by surprise with the new turn of events.

He was at Tulcan near the Columbian border, where he went Saturday to dedicate an airport. He hurried back to the capital, but not in time to attend the emergency session of the cabinet

CUBS REBOUND WITH 2 WINS OVER DAYTON, 1 OVER LIMA

Bruins Travel This Afternoon; Return for Game Here Tonight

By DON C. BURTON

Lefty Jim Sabens returned to work with the Marion Cubs after two weeks of inaction due to a sore arm, and whitewashed the Lima Terriers at Lincoln park yesterday afternoon, 2-0.

Jim never allowed a Lima baserunner to get beyond second base during the nine rounds as he became the leading Marion chucker with 10 wins against only three losses. Jerry Kowalski, Lima righthander almost matched the fine hurling of Sabens, allowing the same number of hits, seven, but he walked six. Three Marion runners got to third on Jerry and two of them scored.

Scores Winning Run

Sabens scored what proved to be the winning run in the third. He led off with a single to left, moved to second on a neat sacrifice by Roy Hollingshead and to third when John Smith beat out an infield single, and scored on a long fly to left by Dwight Maxhimer.

The insurance run came over in the sixth inning which Wally Rasmussen started with a single to right. The Cubs again succeeded with the on-run strategy as Mel Nelson pushed Wally to second with a bunt. When the fourth ball was pitched to Gene Bobzean, Wally stole third. He scored a moment later when the Cubs succeeded in forcing a balk out of Kowalski when Bobzean broke for second.

Cubs Turn Bandits

The Cubs went wild on the bases stealing four times on Catcher-Manager Tony Cherneiski. Mel Nelson, John Smith, Rasmussen and Bobzean committed the larceny.

The Cubs go to Lima this afternoon for the first game of the home and home doubleheader and return to Lima park tonight for the final game of the current home stand.

Bill Rosin, Cub pitcher with a record of 10 wins against four defeats, is expected to return to action on the road trip to Muncie and Richmond which begins in Muncie Tuesday night.

Club Makes It 8 For 10 Against Tribe

The Marion Cubs won both ends of a doubleheader Saturday night at Lincoln park from the Dayton Indians to give them a record of 8 wins in 10 games here with Goodman's gang for the season.

John Graney, young lefthander held the hard hitting Indians to six hits and took the eight inning opener, 3-2, when Ivan Goodman's strategy backfired in the eighth, in what was scheduled as a seven inning affair.

The finale was another one-run victory with the Cubs winning in a slugging bee, 9-8, in ten rounds.

John Edington got credit for the second game when he hurled the tenth after Manager Burbrink had batted for starter Jitts Lawrence in the ninth.

Joe Jackson who had pitched three rounds of hitless ball in the rained-out game Friday night was socked for the loss in the final contest when he pitched only three balls in the tenth, after three other Dayton hurlers had gone the first nine rounds.

Marion won the game in the bottom half of the extra frame. Roy Hollingshead walked to start and was sent to second on a sacrifice by John Smith. Roy moved to third as Maxhimer was thrown out at first. With a runner on third and two out, Manager Goodman decided on unusual strategy. He ordered his pitcher Reilly to purposely pass Wally Rasmussen and Manager Burbrink to load the bases. Reilly got into such habit of throwing balls that he failed to get the ball over for Bob Shuford and when Bob also walked, the winning run was forced over the plate.

Roy Hollingshead also scored the winning run in the tenth inning of the second game after a single by Bobzean with two out had scored the tripling Wally Rasmussen in the ninth. Holly started the tenth with a clean single to center and when Gil Goldstone let the ball get away from him Roy scampered to second. John Smith then hit the first ball pitched right through Micelotta at short and Roy came in to finish the game and sent the 1,642 fans home happy.

RUSS, CHINESE TALK OVER MANCHURIA

By The Associated Press

NANKING, Sept. 1—Gen. Chen Cheng flew yesterday to Mukden to take over the government command in Manchuria as the Kuomintang (government party) executive committee urged "serious negotiations" with Russia to recover all of that huge territory for China.

The negotiation proposal was included in "an outline for Kuomintang reconstruction," which called for a purge of "disloyal" party members, improved discipline and revival of "the revolutionary spirit."

Russia has special treaty rights in Manchuria, which is technically under Chinese government sovereignty but which is largely occupied by Chinese Communists.

Chen, known to foreigners as "an honest general," told a conference of officers before leaving Nanking that he had found much evidence of corruption among army officials in Manchuria and that he intended severe punishment for all offenders. As an example, one army commander recently was dismissed after a UNRRA complaint that government troops had misused relief supplies in Szepingkai, scene of a series of battles with the Communists.

Foreign military observers said one of the reasons for sending him to Mukden was to try to regain support of the civilian population and tap a possible reservoir of a half-million army recruits.

Brooklyn Beats Giants, 10-4 To Keep Loop Lead Intact

By The Associated Press

BROOKLYN, Sept. 1—Led by catcher Bruce Edwards who batted in five runs with a home run and two singles, the Brooklyn Dodgers made it three in a row over the New York Giants yesterday with a 10-4 victory before about 35,000 fans at Ebbets field

Willard Marshall homered in the seventh inning for the Giants to enable them to tie the major league home run record of 182 set by the New York Yankees in 1936.

The victory, the Dodgers' fourth straight, enabled them to retain their 7½ game first place lead over the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards defeated the Cincinnati Reds in a free-hitting game, 15-8.

Hank Behrman was the starter for the Dodgers and twirled five hitless innings before Bill Rigney broke the spell with a clean single to center in the sixth. Behrman weakened in the late innings and when the Giants threatened in the eighth, he was relieved by Vic Lombardi.

Cardinals Whip Reds In Loosely Played Game

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Sept. 1—The St. Louis Cardinals ran roughshod over Cincinnati today to win, 15-8, in a loosely-played game before a crowd of 15,997.

The Cards, making their last appearance of the season here, combed five Redleg pitchers for 14 hits, including a homer by Ron Northey and Erv Dusak's two-run triple.

The Cardinals greeted Redleg Bud Lively with a three-run outburst in the opening frame and shelled him from the mound during a three-run, fourth inning splurge.

After pushing over two markers in the first, the Reds shaved the St. Louis lead to one run when they counted three times in the sixth, sending Howie Pollett to the showers.

But the Cardinals came back in the seventh to move ahead, 10-5, scoring four runs on two hits, two errors by Bert Haas, a walk and Marty Marion's squeeze bunt.

They added five more in the ninth after the Reds had counted three in their half of the seventh.

DENY NAZI OFFICER RETURNED TO REICH

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 1—American, German, and Russian quarters yesterday discredited a Hamburg radio report stating that former Field Marshal Friedrich Von Paulus, captured with his German army at Stalingrad, had returned to Germany to head a political movement for the Russians.

The Hamburg radio said it obtained this information from the American - licensed newspaper Tagesspiegel in Berlin. The editors of Tagesspiegel denied they had ever issued such news.

The official Soviet news bureau here said the report was "absolutely without foundation."

The chief political intelligence officer for the American military government in Berlin likewise said he believed it baseless.

"We've had reports that Von Paulus made short visits to Germany since the war but never any information that he was taking a permanent post," this officer said. "Furthermore, we don't see how he could command any following and be of any value to the Russians in a political position at this time. To the Germans he's just another general who lost an army."

Michigan Chief Takes To Air With Problems

Gov. Sigler Believed To Be Only State Executive with Pilot's Permit.

By DOUGLAS GRAHAM
United Press Staff Correspondent
By The United Press

LANSING, Mich. —Michigan boasts a flying governor believed to be the only one in 48 states licensed to pilot his own plane.

He is Gov. Kim Sigler, 53-year-old former graft buster who has added flying to an already colorful career.

Sigler received his private pilot's license last May 2 and his logbooks already show so much mileage that they look like a commercial airline pilot's record.

Using his own plane, Michigan's chief executive has hopped all over the state. There is scarcely an airport he hasn't visited. Pilots and workers at even the smallest two-by-four fields see him often and the governor calls them by their first names.

This penchant for flying has made Sigler Michigan's most traveled governor. He particularly likes to drop into airports in small towns where the local folk didn't even see governors in campaign years.

Then, too, Sigler likes to take his problems "upstairs".

"When I have a knotty decision to make I like to get up where the air is clean and clear," Sigler explains. "You get a different slant on things up there, sometimes."

Flies High to Think

The governor points out, too, that when he's flying high he can concentrate without annoying distractions of telephones or visitors.

Sigler took to flying like a bear to honey. Fellow pilots rate him a crackerjack. Only one "incident" has marred his aerial career thus far. He recently had to make a forced landing at an out-of-the-way airport. Sigler brought his plane down all right, but he overshot the landing strip and ripped up several yards of fencing. His plane was damaged slightly.

"I don't see anything to get excited about," Sigler told nervous newsmen.

Sigler started out with a two-place ((Cessna) plane, but just recently exchanged that for a four-seater (Bonanza) with more speed and cruising range.

The governor has flown regularly between the capitol in Lansing and his summer mansion at Mackinac Island, a distance of 250 miles. He recently flew his office staff for a weekend outing at the island.

Always Active

Sigler's venturesome spirit led him into flying easily. As a youth he was a cowpuncher and a professional boxer of ability. An excellent swimmer, he once rescued a college girl who later became his wife. He plays golf in the 70's.

In recent years, Sigler exercised his flair for the dramatic with a colorful wardrobe of more than 50 suits, some of which he jovially admits are "crapshooter styled." As Ingham county prosecutor he combined courtroom flamboyance with legal talent to convict 42 grafters in and around the state legislature.

Solution of Saturday's Puzzle

Programs on the Air

A fisherman, 2,000 years ago, who was unable to curb his gambling fever and whose family lived in poverty as a result, is the central figure of "If Thine Eye Offend Thee," the dramatization to be heard during the ABC broadcast of The Greatest Story Ever Told over ABC on Sunday, Sept. 7, at 6:30 p. m.

An absorbing tale of life as lived by the common man in Biblical times, "If Thine Eye Offend Thee" offers a thoughtful interpretation of the passage of Mark 9:43, 47: "And if thy hand offend thee cut it off: It is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched: And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire."

The traditional observance of the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashonah, will be celebrated by a special broadcast over the Coast-to-Coast Mutual Network facilities on Tuesday, Sept. 16, from 9-9:30 p. m. The program, presented in cooperation with the United Jewish Appeal, will star motion picture favorites Ralph Bellamy and Wendy Barrie in a special drama written by Arnold Pearl and titled, "Who Shall Live.'" Appropriate liturgical music will be presented by a chorus with Robert Merrill, Metropolitan Opera baritone, featured in several solo numbers.

New England To Settle Greenest Pastures Tiff

By The United Press

BOSTON — New England is going to find out which of its six states has the "greenest pastures."

A chance remark by Gov. Charles M. Dale of New Hampshire that his state had the best pasture land led the chief executives of the other states to take issue with him.

As a result, the heads of the state departments of agriculture arranged to settle the matter scientifically and impartially.

A committee will be chosen and next year will visit the states to determine which provides the best forage'. Prizes will be awarded at the Eastern States Exposition in the fall.

SAYS ATOM PLAYS NO PART IN VOLCANO

By International News Service

CHICAGO — At least one problem the atomic energy commission won't have to worry about, according to the testimony of an expert, is exploding volcanoes.

Volcanologist Frederick H. Pough is quick to explode the belief that atomic energy plays a part in causing volcanoes to blow their tops from time to time.

The theory holds that small quantities of atomic energy, which might otherwise build up in the earth's crust and go off devastatingly, are released in a safety-valve action by active volcanoes.

However, Dr. Pough points out, little uranium has been discovered in the cooled lava of volcanic eruptions. He has been carrying on research as curator of physical geology for the American Museum of Natural History.

What's more important to folks who live near volcanoes, though, is Dr. Pough's warning that they'd better get up and move to safer quarters in a hurry. The curator said that this year has been volcanically active and spectacular fireworks may be on the way.

Mount Hekla, Iceland's big volcan, erupted March 29 for the first time in 102 years. South Luzon's fiery Mayon volcano erupted Jan. 13. Other volcanoes have exploded in the Aleutian Islands. Mount Aetna in Sicily and Mount Aso in Japan also have been active.

Dr. Pough said American bombing raids on Japanese volcanoes during the war have not been the cause of undue volcanic eruptions.

He added:

"At best, it might possibly have stepped up the eruption if the site was about ready to explode anyway."

Questioned concerning the safety of American troops, Dr. Pough concluded that on volcanoes such as those in the Aleutians scientific data would enable experts to predict eruptions in plenty of time for American troops to get out of the way.

PRICE

price controls within a few months prices would be lowered."

"The fact remains," the labor secretary stated, "that the price of products produced very largely by unorganized workers has increased 72 per cent, and those produced very largely by organized workers have increased 48 per cent."

He made this comparison between prices of food products and those of manufactured products while noting that farmers do not set their own prices.

Corporation Profits Soar

Although wage increases have been a factor in prices, the official added, corporation profits increased from $323,000,000 in the first quarter of 1946 to $875,000,000 for the same period in 1947. He added:

"These profits are in part made because of increase in prices."

"Savings by the wage earners decreased 45 per cent as between 1945 and 1946," Schwellenbach estimated.

Bunting said that if every American worker on Labor Day made an "objective review of where he stands financially" as compared to his position in 1939 and before the war, he would conclude that "in spite of all the hubbub about high prices, he has made encouraging progress in the goods value of his wages and consequently in his standard of living."

Bunting detected a "feeling of uncertainty" as to how long prices will rise and whether wages can keep ahead of prices and taxes. This has produced increased wage demands and "inevitably" price increases, he added.

"Production and improved services are the only guarantees of adequate real wages," the N.A.M. president added. "We cannot have things that we do not produce. We can get more only by producing more."

Posts Bond on Charge of Leaving Accident

Harry M. Robbins, 49, of 549 East Church street posted $125 bond for appearance in municipal court at 2 p. m. Tuesday on charges of leaving the scene of an accident, police reported. The accident occurred at 4:03 p. m. Saturday at Center and Prospect streets when his car, in turning the corner, collided with a car driven by Carroll E. Cogan, 16, of 371 South State street, damaging the left side of the latter car. Cogan informed police who summoned Robbins to the station at 7:27 p. m.

Fireboat Built for Australia

feed it into the other two pumps. In these last two pumps it is put under terrific pressure and ejected through the jet nozzles in the bottom of the hull.

Steering Operation

Steering is accomplished by means of two valves which reduce or increase the amount of water going through one or the other of the nozzles. An increase of pressure on the left nozzle, for instance, will turn the boat to the right.

So flexible is the operation that the boat can be turned around practically in its own length. By reversing the direction of the jets the boat can be stopped in its length while traveling at full speed which is about 11 miles an hour.

Use of the jets for guiding eliminates the need of a rudder. A clutch and reversing gear also are eliminated because they are not needed.

The boat can be operated by one man manipulating two levers controlling the flow of water through the jets, a reversing pedal for changing the direction of the jets and a throttle lever for controlling the speed of the motors.

By way of comparison between the Hanley jet boat and a conventional steam fireboat, the Prospect man says a steam craft of comparable power and water-pumping capacity would be at least 99 feet long. Hanley said the Coast Guard boats out-performed steam fireboats in tests at Washington D. C. in water throwing, to say nothing of their superior maneuverability and ability to go into shallow water.

Observed War Operations

The British and Australians became interested in the Hanley boat through experience with the Coast Guard boats in the war. A number of the Prospect-built craft were sent to England. Others went to Hawaii and many far-flung outposts of the American military forces.

Desirous of investigating the possibilities of jet propulsion for boats, naval authorities of the mother country and dominion contacted Hanley, the only builder of such craft in the United States.

The U. S. Army and Navy also are interested in this means of transportation to reach places found inaccessible to Army "ducks" and landing craft in the recent war.

Hanley's boundless enthusiasm for his boat was demonstrated Saturday morning when he took this reporter on a ride up and down the Scioto river from the dock near the bridge just west of the center of town.

The stretch of the river south from the bridge to the dam a mile or so below would be difficult to distinguish from a similar stream through a faraway jungle. The tree-lined banks cut off any sight of houses and great blue herons sailed lazily ahead of the craft as it proceeded downstream. Their young, too, took awkwardly to the air as we approached.

"There are thousands upon thousands of miles of rivers like this in the world which are inaccessible to conventional screw-driven boats because of their deep draft," Hanley said.

"But a jet boat just like this one, stripped of fire fighting equipment and used as a tug could easily push a float of barges with pay-loads over them."

Built at Prospect

The Australian boat has been built from the keel up in the Hanley Prospect plant. Hulls for the wartime Coast Guard boats were fabricated in other factories, since the military authorities wanted six a week, a rate beyond the capacity of the Hanley plant.

The boat now nearing completion is the only one ordered by the Australians. It will cost in the neighborhood of $35,000, Hanley said.

Such a tugboat as Hanley mentioned now is being built for the U. S. Army. Too large for the shallow Scioto it is being built in an outside shipyard.

When completed it will be the first jet-propelled tugboat ever constructed. It is designed for shallow water operation.

Some of the Early Products

Hanley's first fireboat went to the city of Wheeling, W. Va. Compared to the 17-ton craft now in process of construction it was little more than a rowboat with an engine. Marietta, another Ohio river town, also uses one.

Two of the Coast Guard boats now are used by the municipal fire department of Newark, N. J.

Plans for New Field

For a number of years Hanley has been aiming at the pleasure craft field. He expects to accomplish this within a few months.

The first boat will be an all-mahogany craft drawing three inches of water. The engine and jet propulsion unit will be located in the rear under hatches with the remainder of the boat open. The engine will be about 7 horsepower.

Only one control will be used. This will be a "stick" similar to an airplane control. A push forward on the "stick" will drive the boat ahead and it will be guided by moving the "stick" sideways. A backward pull will reverse the craft. The throttle will be a button on the end of the "stick".

SCOOTER DRIVER CITED

Walter K. Mathiot, 21, of 358 Brightwood drive was arrested by police at 1 p. m. Sunday and charged with reckless operation of a motor scooter at High and Center streets. He is to appear in municipal court at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

This year is the 80th anniversary of Christian Science.

3 Minor Accidents Reported to Police

Three minor accidents in Marion were reported to police Saturday. The first reported at 11:45 a. m. involved cars driven by Donald E. McVay, 19, of 262 Franconia avenue and Lenore S. Whitman, 20, of 147 Canby court. The Whitman car in backing up to permit a car parked in front of it to leave a parking space at 189 West Center street collided with the McVay car. Slight damage was reported.

The second accident occurring at 1:04 p. m. in front of 130 South Prospect street involved cars driven by Rosalie Z. Winters, 35, of 334 Thew avenue and Mrs. Marie E. Wilson, 53, of 505 Blaine avenue. The cars hooked bumpers when the Wilson car which was double parked started to move as the Winters car was attempting to pass. Slight damage to fenders and bumpers was reported.

Cars driven by Edward H. Fetter, 70, of 523 Pearl street and Earl J. Bernard, 22 of Green Camp collided at 3:06 p. m. at the intersection of Bellefontaine avenue and South Prospect street. According to the police report the vehicle driven by Fetter in making a right turn into Bellefontaine avenue collided with the car driven by Bernard. Slight damage to fenders was reported.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

"I BELIEVE," said Katharine Olina, Dicky and me, of his new problem in espionage, and I set slowly, smiling at Mary, "that my lips before speaking, with the the new slogan is, 'The customer must be humored.'"

"Instead of being kicked downstairs for daring to ask for anything?" Mary asked.

"Exactly," Katharine told her. "Therefore, I'm going to let you hear anything any of these nice ladies choose to tell you—provided you don't let yourself get excited over the story."

"There's only one answer to that," Mary said. "Just park yourself in this armchair next to me, and watch me with those penetrating eyes of yours. Then you can ride herd on my emotions. You can do a much better job of it than I can."

"Is that a respectful way to speak to your nurse—and your elder?" Katharine demanded severely. "However," she added resignedly, "I probably would drop dead if you addressed me with proper respect for my advancing years. So I'll sit next to you and watch you with an eagle eye, as you suggest."

"You old darling" Mary exclaimed enthusiastically, as Katharine sat down in the chair next to hers.

Then she turned to the rest of us.

The New Angle

"Now begin to spoon the lenuls, sweethearts!" she adjured us. "What is this new angle about Georges and Pietro, and why is it so upsetting to 'Lina that she's shying at attempting a role with me in Aunt Madge's new play? It sounds as if something pretty terrible were in the offing."

Olga and Olina looked at me, and Olga translated the look into words.

"Will you be our spokeswoman, dear Madge?" she queried.

There was something in her voice which told me how poignant was her suffering over this newest development in the turbulent saga of her traitorous son Otto My father had arranged things so that she need not be present when he told her husband, Philip, with why Aunt Katharine can be with us at this time," I said. "And now that the background is in your mind, I'll go on with the part of the story that concerns Olina

'A part of the conspiracy my father has unearthed," I said slowly, "stems from the Balkans, and especially from Transvania. The secret of the immense treasure in the hidden rock chambers far beneath the ancient royal castle of Transvania is in danger of falling into the hands of these Nazi conspirators."

Olga's figure straightened regally in her chair, and her voice was like the militant peal of a bell.

"Do not try to spare my feelings, dear Madge," she said "Tell Mary the truth, that my traitorous son, Otto, who knows the secret, is on the point of turning it over to the enemies of his country."

The cornea of a fish's eye is flat, and all the focusing is done by the lens of the eye. In the human eye the cornea is round ,and it performs about two-thirds of the work in bending light rays to a focus on the retina.

MODEST MAIDENS — By Jay Alan

"—He's quite an athlete, too, always exercising his prerogative!"

THE TIMID SOUL — By H. T. Webster

I'D LIKE TO TAKE OUT THIS POLICY OF YOURS, YOUNG MAN, BUT MY CONSCIENCE WON'T LET ME. LISTEN TO THIS—"ACCORDING TO A PSYCHIATRY PROFESSOR, THE BULK OF THE U.S. POPULATION (PERHAPS 133,000,000) STRUGGLE THROUGH LIFE WITH SOME UNNECESSARY HANDICAP OF NERVOUSNESS. THEY MAY BE OVER-CONSCIENTIOUS, OVER-SENSITIVE, OR PEGGED BY FEARS, PREJUDICES, FEELINGS OF INFERIORITY. MANY INDIVIDUALS AND FAMILIES IN THIS GROUP ARE POOR INSURANCE RISKS BECAUSE THEY SEEM TO HAVE AN AFFINITY FOR ACCIDENTS." —THERE YOU ARE, YOU SEE, YOUR COMPANY WOULD LOSE MONEY ON ME
